GLENDALE STREETS SOON TO BE BEST IN COUNTRY; WORK IS NOW UNDER WAY

Thirty-two Streets Are Being Improved and Legal Proceedings for Forty-one Others Are in Course of Passage

BETTER QUALITY OF STREET IS BEING LAID

When Completed, the Streets Will Be Wonderful Advertisement for Glendale; They Will Attract Tourists to This Place

There probably is not a city in the world that has such an elaborate plan of street work under way and in preparation as has Glendale. At the present time there are 32 streets in this city that are being improved and 41 streets, the legal proceedings for which work are now in the course of passage. The value of this street work amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars and the entire system as proposed will be completed within a course of a few months.

For the past few months the Glendale city council has been making an effort to bring the streets of Glendale up to the very highest possible standard. When the city was very young a system of streets was installed that, while sufficiently heavy for the time the streets were laid, is altogether inadequate for the present time. These were mostly of the "oiled street" variety, this consisting of a coat of oil and a little crushed rock. The traffic of this day, however, demands a much heavier street than that of the oiled variety, and in every instance where the street is being replaced it is being supplanted by a street having at least three inches of rock in addition to the oil to serve as a binder.

The system of streets that is now being installed, it is believed, will last for years, and when the streets that are now in course of construction or are planned have been completed, Glendale will have one of the best roadway systems to be found anywhere. The members of the council believe that good streets are an absolute necessity. They are the best kind of an advertisement for a city, and for this reason the members are determined that Glendale shall be the best "streeted" city in Southern California.

Following are the street work jobs that are now under way:

Adams street and North Adams place; Brand blvd., Colorado to Windsor; Broadway west; Ben Lomond, Ardevon and Glen View roads; Cypress and Oakridge street improvement; Columbus avenue, Broadway to Arden; Doran street, Columbus to San Fernando; Everett street, Maple to Lomita; Harvard, Hawthorne and Orange; Irving, Thompson and Raymond; Jackson, Doran north; Kenneth road, Sonora to west limits; Louise street, Broadway to Windsor; Los Feliz road; Laurel and Eulalia; Mountain street; Milford street, Central to Columbus; Patterson, Chester and Fairmont, Kenilworth west; Palmer avenue improvement, Adams east; Pacific avenue, Broadway to San Fernando; Pacific avenue, Myrtle to Doran; Park and San Fernando intersection, culvert; Rosedale court; Salem street, Columbus to Pacific! P. E. SWITCHING IN BUSY HOURS IS OPPOSED

Credit Association Seeks to Enforce Regulations Against Nuisance

The matter of switching Pacific Electric freight trains through the city of Glendale during business hours was brought up for discussion at the regular noon-day meeting and luncheon of the Glendale Credit association on Monday, at the chamber of commerce.

It seems that there is some regulation as to the time such freight cars should be switched through here, and said regulation provides that cars are not to be taken through Glendale during business hours. City Manager Reeves was present at the meeting, and will doubtless look into the matter.

Dr. E. V. Hogue brought up the question of open mufflers on automobiles. It was his opinion that this muffler ordinance should be enforced, for heavy trucks run through the city with them wide open. This also was discussed.

President Owen C. Emery presided at the meeting, and there were about 40 members present.

ST. MARK'S GETS PERMANENT HEAD

Rev. Philip K. Kemp Called to Occupy Pulpit in Glendale

Rev. Philip K. Kemp, who worked for three years with Bishop Stephens as curate of St. Mark's church of San Antonio, Texas, has accepted the call to the St. Mark's Episcopal church of this city. Rev. Kemp is a brilliant talker and is married. He will begin his work in Glendale on November 1.

STEEL STATION FOR OIL SALE IS PERMITTED

Amendment to Building Ordinance Passed at Eagle Rock

The amendment to the building ordinance, permitting the erection of steel oil stations in the city of Eagle Rock, was passed, so that in addition to the regular fireproof regulations, these stations are now included within the city's sanction.

The ordinance regulating the garbage situation of Eagle Rock passed at the first reading. By this ordinance the meaning of garbage, as set forth in the printed card showing the garbage route, caused to be distributed to every home in Eagle Rock, was adopted.

Ordinance 201, providing for the expense of the engineering departmnet, the cost of posting, printing and such details of the department, was passed at the first reading.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Peart, Miss Alice Lockabaugh, Miss Dorothy Peart, Frank Butterfield, all of Glendale, and Guy Harn of Los Angeles, motored to Balboa over the week-end and report a splendid time.

400 TEACHERS GATHER AT HIGH

Institute Is Well Attended; Good Musical Program

About 400 teachers from the Glendale High School district attended the Teachers' Institute held Monday at the Union High School. This district includes Glendale, Eagle Rock city, La Crescenta and Sunland.

The morning session opened with a musical program, the first number being "The Star Spangled Banner," played by the high school orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Dora Gibson. A medley of Italian folk pieces arranged by Ascher was then played by the orchestra. This was followed by "Chinchilita" by Hertz, a beautiful Spanish number, directed by Ivan Dow, a member of the high school orchestra. An encore "Hopi Indian Dance" was also enjoyed.

The Boys Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Parker, sang "Gypsy John," "Get Away from that Corn Field," a negro melody and "Little Green Apple." The entire musical program was enjoyed by a most appreciate audience.

Just before the address of the morning, Mrs. C. A. Parker led in community singing.

Merton E. Hill, principal of the Chaffee high school at Ontario, addressed the institute in the morning, his subject being "The Education for the Greater Life." He spoke in an unusual manner of the progress in that line that the school has been able to put over. It seems that they offer a course found no where else in the state, and one that is of great value to the agriculturist. Principal George Moyse was in charge of the morning session.

The afternoon meeting opened, with Richardson D. White in the chair. He introduced as the speaker of the afternoon, Henry A. Adrian, a well known Chautauqua lecturer and fluent speaker.

Mr. Adrian told of the people he had met who had the most influence in his life. They were Francis Willard, Col. Baines of Kentucky and William Jennings Bryan. He described vividly some of the scenes in the South after the Civil War and told of some of the experiences with the Ku Klux Klan. His talk was very interesting and entertaining.

Miss Brenneman, teacher of music in the city schools, had charge of that part of the afternoon's program. The first number was "In Our Boat" by Allitsen, sung by Mrs. Kent and Miss Brenneman, and accompanied at the piano by Miss Gladys Sharpe and on the violin by Miss Faith Tarling. They also sang "By the Waters of Minnetonka" by Thurlieu Lieurance.

Mr. Lowe, representing the county superintendent's office, closed the meeting with a word of appreciation to the speakers and led in the singing of "America."

'WHILE PARENTS SLUMBER'

There are some parents upon whose ears the cry of "fire" in the night awakens no alarm. There are some entrusted with the care and upbringing of tender young womanhood, who see no danger for them when danger and evil is whispering in the very ears of those given them to protect.

Who then is to blame, if evil seeps into the youth and the young lives of the city are made a morass of decayed morality, lying under the youthful face, youthful form and a career of diseased existence spreads its dreadful agonies along the way of the years to come, a hideous carpet for young limbs and blighted hopes to toil upon in the monotony of the scorched life?

That it may have no share in the responsibility of the domination of such evil in the lives of the youth of Glendale, the Glendale Daily Press again echoes its warning to some of the dormant parents of this district, first uttered months ago in its editorial, "Sowing the Whirlwind."

This time it will state cold stark facts in the hope that these related in sequence will bring to these parents a shock; a shock that will arouse them to some sense of their own personal damage, through the contamination of their daughters and the contamination of their own sons.

A shock which will show them the evils that surround the blossoming hours of their offspring from which these parents alone can save them, an evil bred by the neglect of these parents.

These then are the facts:

A "party" was held at a neighboring town Friday night, given by a Glendale resident; 35 or 40 of the young daughters and young sons of Glendale were present.

There was no chaperon. These daughters went with boys to the party. Boys the parents never sought to investigate for moral responsibility to take charge of their daughters. Girls whom, if the parents of the boys escorting them knew well, would never be welcomed as daughters to their homes.

Indecent dancing was speedily developed at the "party."

The daughters of some of you, with that sterling character greater than others, fled blushing from the scene. They sought to go home. But the young men to whom some of you had entrusted them refused to take them home, to YOU.

A dispenser of liquor, driving a Nash car, drove into the grounds. His presence was prearranged by the youths to whom some of you had entrusted your daughters, by the youths with which some of you permitted your son to associate.

The bootlegger was welcomed. He disposed of his vice-breeding, conscience-killing preparations.

These daughters, some not yet 16 years old, drank. They became drunk.

The Glendale Daily Press has no desire to further detail the scenes that followed. It has a list of those who were intoxicated.

It indicts you here and now because of their condition.

It was YOU who Friday night SOWED THE WHIRLWIND in the lives of your sons and daughters.

And today, when this is printed, and it is read by you, you, some parents of Glendale, the Glendale Daily Press wonders, as it thinks of the evil that may develop within the next six months as the result of YOUR NEGLECT FRIDAY NIGHT. It wonders whether these facts will waken you. Wonders if the fear of personal damage, distress, discomfort to you personally—is the only language you understand?

MAKE NO EVASION! YOU HELD THAT PARTY. WITHOUT YOUR PERMISSION YOUR DAUGHTERS AND YOUR SONS WOULD NOT HAVE BEEN THERE! THERE WOULD NOT HAVE BEEN A PARTY IF YOU HAD REFUSED TO ALLOW YOUR CHILDREN TO GO!

$1,000 DOG KILLED WITH GROUND GLASS

Valuable Wolf Hound of Eagle Rock Resident Is Victom of Enemy

The mystery of the poisoning of the Eskimo wolf dog, valued at $1,000, which was owned by Raymond Church, is the problem the Nick Harris detectives are trying to unravel in Eagle Rock.

Mr. Church, who resides at 234 N. Kenilworth, stated that the poisoning occurred last week, and that noticing the peculiar actions of the animal, he had him taken to the kennels. Finally an incision was made, and the poisoning found to be that of ground glass. Indignant over the cruelty of such a method of killing the dog, Mr. Church enlisted the services of the Nick Harris detectives, and stated today, that he intended to make it hot for the person who did it. Church's dog was the son of the wonder dog, Alaska. He had him in his possession for over two years.

That the dog was at times rather wild, and that he occasionally killed rabbits and chickens, was not excuse enough, to his mind, he states, for such cruelty as the glass dose inflicted. He intends to carry on the investigation until the guilty party is found.

AUTO CRASH

An accident occurring two blocks east of Eagle Rock road and Colorado when two machines clashed and emerged from the tangle with broken running boards and wheels severed from the axles, was reported to the city hall early this morning.

Phillip E. Eielinger of 390 West Wilson, Glendale, and L. G. Merritt of 252 Clinton street, Pasadena, were the parties to the accident. Neither placed the blame. No personal injuries resulted.

CONTINENTAL AIR ROUTE IS CHARTED

PASADENA, Oct. 10. — An air route from the Atlantic to the Pacific has been charted and both commercial and passenger airships will soon be following it, according to Major H. A. Strauss, in command of the army dirigible C-2, which is scheduled to leave Ross field, Arcadia, at 8:30 tonight. The first stop will be at El Paso, Strauss indicated in his farewell statement to the press and Southern California towns where they have been entertained.

"We made the first trans-continental air journey across the United States and we are desirous of making the first round trip," Major Strauss said in a formal statement issued today. "Only minor defects in the new motor have delayed us and we expect to leave at 8:30 tonight.

"We have officially charted an air route from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific and along this course, we fully expect to learn soon that commercial passenger airships are using it. The first leg of the cruise has developed tangible and useful values. We will check up on the return and believe that our achievements will be of tremendous significance to the United States.

"Before departing, we want to thank the newspapers, press services and people of California for their splendid hospitality while we have been here."

GLENDALE SEWER CONFERENCE IS UNDER WAY

City Executives Meet with Los Angeles Councilmen

Another step on the part of the Glendale city council toward securing the proposed connection to the Los Angeles outfall sewer is being taken today. Mayor Robinson and Councilmen Lapham, Kimlin and Davis are meeting today with the sanitary committee of the Los Angeles city council. The meeting, which is being held in Los Angeles, was called for 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. Councilman Stephenson, who is now visiting in the north, is not present at the meeting.

When viewed from every angle, this meeting is one of the most important ever held in connection with the activities of the city of Glendale. It has to do with the biggest question with which this city has ever been faced—the sewer problem. For years those who are interested in the welfare of Glendale have been studying the sewer problem as relating to this city. Committees have been appointed to consider this problem and meetings have been held by the score, but up to the time this connection with the Los Angeles outfall was proposed nothing has been devised that would be satisfactory to all parts of Glendale.

There was something lacking in every plan. It was not so much with regard to the method and possibility of taking care of the sewage as it was the point at which the sewage receiving tank would be located. What was satisfactory to one locality would, according to claims made, work to the detriment of some other section. The sewer problem was, therefore, very much in the air until this outfall connection was proposed.

The mayor and city council are in Los Angeles today to see what can be done about the matter. They are there to tell the sanitary committee of the Los Angeles city council that Glendale is willing to do its share—its full share—in securing this connection with the Los Angeles outfall. This will include, it is understood, not only the establishment of the sewer system in Glendale and the cost of the connection with the outfall, but also this city's share of the total cost of the Los Angeles outfall sewer, and of the maintenance cost of same. It could not be expected that Glendale's responsibility so far as the care of its sewage would cease the minute it leaves the Glendale system and enters the outfall. Glendale must take care of that sewage until it reaches the exit of the outfall. Therefore, this city must, of necessity, help pay the cost of construction and also maintenance of the outfall.

The outcome of the meeting today and also of the meetings that are sure to be held in the future is of utmost importance to Glendale and to its residents. The sewage problem must be settled soon and the outfall is the logical solution.

GLENDALE'S BEST BABIES ARE PLACED IN FINAL TEST OF GREAT STORKLAND RACE

They Are Included in Survivors of Elimination Contest Held in Los Angeles, Where One Thousand Candidates Are Assembled

ASSEMBLED IN RINGS FOR LAST JUDGES

Noise and Confusion Mark Final Work in the Great Southern California Sweepstake, But Glendale's Babies Are Marked

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

The finals in the Los Angeles best baby contest were a strenuous affair in which not less than one thousand babies attended by anxious mothers participated.

The contest took place in the dining room of the Ambassador hotel, a beautiful room with highly polished floors on which the youngsters skated with glee.

They were assembled in rings by ages and there inspected by Dr. Reiss, Dr. Moore, Colonel Fowler, Mrs. Nickerson and Miss Ella Buchanan.

Guy Earl of the Express staff had general charge of the contest, and the events were announced through a megaphone, difficult to understand because of the noise and confusion.

The Glendale contestants, Betty Russell, Betty Rich, Richard Kerns, Dolores Friedman, Phyllis Huser, Phyllis Reinhardt, and the twins, Robert and Virginia Rose, were there with their mothers and Dr. Frances Eble, representative of the Glendale judges, and all the children found their places in the proper rings but there were long waits for inspection of judges and more waits when the smaller group of candidates for top notch honors were segregated and rejudged, and several of the Glendale contestants were recalled to final elimination rings.

Glendale's first prize winner, Bettie Russell, was placed in the final ring from which the winners of high prizes were picked, the ring including Jack Richard Maur- [illegible] months of Santa Monica; Donald Allen Hill, 8 months, 740 Surrey road, Los Angeles; John J. Wray, Jr., 11 months, 3429 Atwater avenue, Los Angeles; Hazel Conley, 21 months, 236 East Fourth place, Los Angeles; Teddie Burton Graham, 21 months, 255 Mariposa avenue, Long Beach; Baby Stone, 15 months, 1702 West boulevard, Los Angeles; Bettie Russell, 2 years, 901 Orange Grove avenue, Glendale; Raymond Burke, 33 months, 457 Ulysses street, Los Angeles; Emilie Cook, 27 months, 1384 Oak Grove, Los Angeles; Maxine June Chambers, 2½ years, 2436 Thirty-ninth avenue, Los Angeles; Mimi Bronson, 5 years, 5615 La Mirada, Hollywood; Betsy Ann Hisle, 5 years, 1332 North Kingsley drive, Los Angeles; Edgar C. Pease, 6½ years, 800 West Sixty-sixth street, Los Angeles; Billy Lord, 4 years, Hollywood apartments; Juliette Rizzo, 2961 East Fourth street, Los Angeles; Juanita Marian Hammond, 4½ years, 800 North Coronado; Frances Eddy, 3 years, 806 East Thirty-second street, Los Angeles; King Gates, 3½ years, 2015 South Grand, Los Angeles; Muriel McCormac, 1132½ Lemoyne street Los Angeles.

The children segregated from this ring who are presumably prize winners, although they will not be announced as such until the Wednesday edition of the Express were: Jack R. Maurer, T. B. Graham, Raymond Burke, Billy Lord, Mimi Bronson and Frances Eddy.

Because of the numbers, the noise and the confusion, it was a very trying afternoon, especially for the mothers who all looked fagged at the close of the ordeal, but the wonderful children had still plenty of pep and good nature.

In the Express contest no effort had been made to give physical tests or examinations. Elimination contests had been held in the city parks where vigorous, bright and beautiful children were picked for the finals which took place yesterday.

The judges stated that because of the numbers no attempt had been made to determine how near the contestants came to measuring up to the physical standards established for best babies.

As stated, the announcement of winners in the Los Angeles Express contest will be made Wednesday.

U. S. LOAN IS OVERSUBSCRIBED

Billions of Surplus Investment Funds Shown in Rush to Record

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Billions of dollars of surplus investment money in the United States, presaging an unprecedented business revival, were disclosed today as the result of the government's call for a 34-year loan of a half billion dollars at 4¼ per cent.

Oversubscription of the loan, asked for refunding of part of the national debt, by $1,000,000,000 to $2,000,000,000, was assured today as applications for hundreds of millions rolled into the New York financial district banks from coffers of "American business."

ANNEXATIONISTS ASK DELAY ON BOND ISSUE

Professor Chandler Appears Before Board of Trustees with Request

Professor Chandler of Occidental college, representing the committee for annexation, appeared before the board of trustees last evening in official capacity, requesting that the calling of the election for the bond issue for water supply and fire protection be held over until the petition for an election on the question of annexation to Los Angeles could be presented, in order that annexation might appear as one number on the same ballot with the other two propositions.

Though this matter has been discussed before, it had been understod that annexation would come up for a separate election. The board took Prof. Chandler's request under advisement.

Another proposition was added to the numbers to appear on the ballot with the water supply and fire protection. This was an amount of $25,000 to be voted for the installation of arc lights, covering the whole city as a district. This would not include Colorado boulevard, where the lights have already been installed through assessments on the present property owners.

The total amount to be voted would be $60,000 for additional water supply, including two new wells, a reservoir on Sagamore hill and new mains installed along Colorado, and leading to the reservoir, $40,00 for installing fire hydrants, the regular 4-inch and 6-inch hydrants and replacing certain 2-inch mains with 4-inch mains; and the $25,000 for lights, making a total of $125,000 to appear on the ballot.

WATER TEST TO BE EXPLAINED

Following the receipt of the report on the water of Eagle Rock made each week by Raymond G. Osborne, P. H. Ducker made the request that the tester make a statement in his report each week as to whether the water is safe for domestic use.

Hitherto, the reports have been made in the technical terms of the chemist, and Ducker recommended that in addition to these notations, Osborne make a statement as to the condition. The suggestion was accepted by the board, and the city clerk was instructed to make a communication to that effect with Osborne.

Your doctor knows the value of Ice~
If you're in any doubt as to the value of keeping ice in the house all the year round—ask your Doctor.
He'll tell you that even in cool weather food deteriorates and loses much of its value unless it's kept in a cold, even temperature.
And he'll tell you that in many foods, especially milk, germs thrive and multiply rapidly at a temperature higher than 50 degrees.

RALPH ALLAN IS BACK FROM NORTH

"I'm glad I'm home," was the first thing Ralph Allan said upon his arrival back in Glendale after his vacation which he spent in a motoring trip to northern parts of the state.

"Had a great time, a wonderful trip, saw all the sights to be seen in the big towns up north, but I'll take Glendale and Southern California every time. In fact, the more I see of other places, the more I love our great Southland country. There is no place like it."

The young theater man drove to Oakland in 19 hours, including 1 hour stops in Bakersfield, Fresno and Modesto, making the distance in 16 actual hours of driving. Having visited friends in Oakland, San Francisco and the Peninsula, Allan returned home via the Coast route.

Mrs. Allan accompanied him on the journey. They brought Mrs. Ruth Allan, Mr. Allan's mother, with them from San Francisco for a stay in Glendale.

FLAPPERITES

"DISCUSSED AND DISGUST"

There's a little question about practicing what is preached, in the case of the lecturer on diet and health and long life, who dropped dead on the pavement about ten minutes after he had left the lecture hall. It was just one of those little incongruities that fate fixes up every once in a while.

O, Bruno
'Tis noono
The sun he is O, high, O,
I come O
Back home O
To write my will O and die O.
The moon O
Will soon O
Be bright O in the sky O
I dream O
It seem O
I do not want to die O
But should O
A good O
New hat be bought today O
I'd live O
And give O
My thoughts to die away O.

Yes, October 10 is Sol's birthday. He is now 50 years old, half a hundred, in other words, twice twenty-five, and he weighs 239 pounds, 2.39 ounces (the 2.39 being war tax).

EXPLANATION—When you see advertised "room for rent," (yes, when you see it)—you may know it means that there is a vacant space enclosed by four walls, bounded on the top by a ceiling and a roof, and on the bottom by a floor. They sometimes leave this explanation out of the classified columns, and some people become confused, and think that there might be a porch included in a room for rent.

That's a mistake. If you don't know it by this time, your landlady will soon tell you—and you won't even need to ask her.

EAGLES SEEK AN EYRIE WITHIN BURBANK

The baseball team, calling itself at the present time, the Los Angeles All-Star and formerly known as the Eagle Rock Eagles, played Glendale Saturday and marched away with the game to the tune of 9 to 4. Sunday they played the San Bernardino nine and in a hard fought, ten inning game were defeated 4 to 3.

The team, which has been playing for some weeks under the management of Sam Clark, is anxious to become the official baseball team of Burbank and Clark is circulating a petition in the team's support.

Until the present time the team has had no home town and is anxious to become affiliated.

BRIGHT LITTLE ONES AWAIT ADOPTION

Children's Home Society Has Some Fine Youngsters

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 10.—That the average homeless or abandoned kiddie of California is mentally of a high type and neither dull nor defective, as sometimes supposed, has been established in a series of interesting tests just concluded at the Oakland branch of the Children's Home Society, 3491 Sixty-sixth avenue. In these tests, which were made under the direction of Prof. Horn of Mills College, many of the children were shown to be actually above the normal or average for children of the same age.

Tests were made upon children above 5 years of age to determine their mental status and in a number of instances the test curve reached 122.5, which is 22.5 per cent above the normal for children of that age. In other cases the children graded 105 and 110 per cent, showing that the children who have been deserted by their parents or have been taken by the courts are of a high type of mentality, at least in California.

In an official statement issued by Mrs. Jessie Jordan, state superintendent of the society, it is asserted that the general mental average of children in charge of the society is gradually being raised. Today, such children are of higher mental quality than in past years.

Mrs. Jordan states that many homeless children of high mentality come to the society as a result of seperations among men and women of education and culture. Because of their birth and environment these children are said to constitute a new problem so far as the finding of suitable homes is concerned.

The increased mentality of its little charges makes it necessary for the society to ask for still better homes so that their mental growth may be continuous and up to a high standard. An attempt is now being made to list a large number of prospective foster parents who are willing to adopt these high grade children and give them the homes they require to become useful citizens. Persons who desire to adopt one or more of these children may make applications to the society either at the Oakland address or at 919 East 25th street, Los Angeles.

47 Per Cent Increase in Growth Means Additional Money Is Imperative

To the Citizens of the Glendale Union High School District:

Review of Growth of School.

The crowded conditions in the high school one year ago showed that action for additional school facilities could not be delayed. We reviewed the history of the school and found a record of outgrown sites, additions to site, additional permanent buildings, and temporary bungalows—each change only to be again found inadequate to meet the remarkable growth of this valley. We determined that the mistakes of the past should not be repeated and that this time a site and buildings sufficient for a plant large enough to meet our needs should now be secured.

December 29, 1921, the patrons voted $85,000 for a new site by an overwhelming majority.

We now faced the building situation. We knew the utmost available funds would be needed. Therefore, we asked for what was then the full unused bonding capacity of the district, $600,000. So well known was the need that on May 2, 1922, the people voted these bonds by the tremendous majority of 17 to 1.

The architect was then instructed to prepare plans to meet the needs of the district. He made preliminary plans and reported to the Board that a complete plant which would accommodate the number of students waiting at the time of its completion could not be built for $600,000. The incredible growth of our district substantiated this statement. The increase in the average attendance of our high school last year was 42 per cent over that of the preceding year and the present enrollment in our day high school alone is 47 per cent over what it was at the beginning of last year, while that of the evening high school is over 100 per cent greater than last year.

Faced with this situation, we presented the matter to the people in a mass meeting. The people saw not only the immediate need but also the needs of the future and in their mass meeting instructed us to call a bond election for $350,000—this money to be used for the completion of the building fund for the new high school plant and also for the purchase of a site in the northwest part of the district. Two considerations led the people to recommend the purchase of an additional site: (1) The remarkable growth of the district makes it evident that one high school, however large, cannot long serve the district's full needs, (2) that land may be purchased now at the present acreage valuation rather than at the residence lot prices of the future.

The bond election could not be called until this year's increased assessed valuations were available for bonding purposes. We were guided by the County Council in this matter and he set the date of the election for October 20, 1922. This is a summary of what has led up to the present situation.

There will be four sites submitted to the voters for their selection. This will be done by a preferential ballot given to each voter, when he votes at the bond election. The site receiving the greatest number of votes will be the one purchased by the Trustees.

The Imperative Need of Immediate Action.

The present crowded condition of the high school must be relieved. Every bit of space in the present plant is being used, the school day has been lengthened to from 7:45 to 4:15, which is probably the longest school day in the state, and yet the school is crowded to the doors. Every day brings additional students and February will bring an entering class of 200 at least. Hundreds of students will come in September next to be cared for in this already overcrowded place. The new buildings, if started today, could not be ready for use until January 1, 1924. We dare not delay longer. The educational welfare of all the boys and girls of this valley is at stake. The $600,000 already voted will not provide a complete plant large enough for the boys and girls who will be waiting for it when it is finished.

We have laid the problem before you. Its solution rests with you. Will you give your boys and girls the educational opportunities that other boys and girls have? You always have. Do it now.

Election, October 20th.

Polling places, as in the last high school bond election.

Respectfully submitted,

THOS. D. WATSON, President.
DAN CAMPBELL, Clerk.
DR. H. V. BROWN,
MRS. BLANCHE A. GARDINER,
H. W. YARICK,

THEOSOPHY TO BE DISCUSSED

Rev. Charles Hampton of Portland, Ore., speaking last night on "Theosophy" in the Ralph Building, 201 West Broadway, declared that all religions had a common basis and that for the first time in recorded history Christians, Buddhists, Hindus, Parsees and Jews—in short, members of all religions of the world—had met in amity and brotherhood under the inspiration of Theosophy.

The lecturer discussed the life after death, dealt briefly with reincarnation and concluded with some scathing remarks about gossip, which he said made brotherhood a mockery and religion an empty dream.

Tonight the lecturer will speak on the subject of "Evolutionary Creation," going fully into the question of reincarnation. The public is cordially invited to attend.

ANTI-FOREIGN FEELING STILL IN CHINA

Peking—Anti-foreign feeling is growing again in China—not rapidly but steadily and noticeably.

The growth is being carefully watched by all foreign elements as well as by a number of Chinese who are convinced that China will shortly have to call on the foreigner for help.

The anti-foreign campaign grew out of the socalled anti-Christian campaign last winter. That movement began while the Washington Conference was in session. It subsided quickly when Chang Tso-lin soldiers menaced the Northern cities for about the only refuges open to the Chinese were the missionary compounds. It has cropped out again.

The Peking-Suiyuan railroad is practically out of operation because officials and employees alike have declared the road to be independent of the government. The action was anti-foreign. An American company last year sold the road 600 freight cars, but when time came for delivery the road had no money. The Americans proposed that a special accountant be named to keep a record of the American cars, and that the road pay for the cars out of their earnings.

A cry at once arose: "The Americans are trying to steal our railroad," said the employees. "Down with the foreigners!"

The employees enmasse called on the minister of communications, threatening him with a general strike if he yielded to the Americans. The matter is still undecided and the cars are still undelivered.

WILLYS - KNIGHT NEW MODEL IS IN GLENDALE

One of the First of the 7-Passenger Type Reaches the City

The new 7-passenger Willys-Knight has arrived.

One of the first two new cars of this model to reach the Pacific Coast has made its appearance in Glendale and is here to stay.

George T. Smith, 228 South Brand Boulevard, distributor of the Willys Knight and Overland automobile in Glendale, the popularity of which cars has made the factory increase of 600 per cent. production insufficient to take care of the rapidly increasing demands, has been favored by the factory with one of the first cars of this model to be brought west.

This beautiful, silent and powerful car is now on display at the showrooms of the local agency. It is finished in the Willys-Knight blue with black enamel hood, radiator and fenders, which combination has proven so popular with automobile buyers in the past. The seating arrangement of this car is very commodious, the car having a larger wheelbase and being larger throughout than the popular 5-passenger model.

In appearance and operation this car is above the average. It is really in a class by itself. Since its arrival this 7-passenger model has created considerable discussion among automobile fans. The sturdy and enduring qualities of the Willys-Knight are well known throughout the motoring world, and the fact that many Glendalians have been waiting for the 7-passenger model in this car has been proven by the remarkable interest that has been shown in it.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Eating too much meat may clog Kidneys, then the Back hurts.

Eating too much meat may produce kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so that it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithiawater drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. —Adv.

ELDER WARREN ENDS EVENING SERMONS

Elder Warren closed his evening meetings at the Seventh Day Adventist Church Sunday night, preaching one of the most forcible sermons he has delivered during the ten days he has been with the church in a special effort. The big church was crowded to overflowing and at the close of the sermon many signified their intention to start the new life.

"I am going to talk to the Kindergartners tonight," said Elder Warren, "and if you have graduated from this department you need not remain with us," continued the speaker. "When we begin the study of arithmetic we must understand the rules, and in perusing this study we must use the rules everyday. It is the same with religion. There are certain fundamentals, and unless we have them and thoroughly understand them we will make very little progress in the Christian life. The Bible is the best book in mathematics. All text books of the earlier days have been changed, and most of them are out of date. But the principles of mathematics never change, and so it is with the Bible. I was born in the darkest corner of Missouri, and I had to be shown. I studied the Bible and adopted as my slogan, the words of Alexander Campbell, who gave them as a safe guide for the Christian church of which he was leader, namely, 'Where the Bible Speaks We Speak, and where it is Silent we are Silent.' I have found this injunction to be of great help to me, and I have never failed to lay stress upon it when I had the opportunity. It is useless for the student to try to master geometry and calculus until he has mastered algebra and the lower branches of mathematics. Many people have studied long and hard, but have never mastered the first principles in Christianity. They, therefore, make very little progress in their work. We should get the first principles of Christ and then we will have something to build upon upon. Hold fast to that which is good.

"The Seventh Day Adventists take pride in keeping the Ten Commandments. They believe it is God's direct order to all Christians.

"The foundation of the Bible is Christ. In everything give thanks," said Elder Warren. "Are we thankful when adversity comes? Do we thank God when our plans fail, and say 'thou knowest best, dear father.' Do we know that everything works together for good to the true Christian? When we can truly thank God when misfortunes and adversity overtakes us and feel that it is best for us then we will be far along the road to Christian perfection. 'Give thanks in everything,' says the Master, and when we do so we will be blessed. Christians should not use idle or foolish words, for we are to give an account for every word uttered.

"When God says it so, it's so if it isn't so. We may not believe the saying, but God told Abraham he would be the father of a multitude, and the people thought the old man had become crazy; but we know today that God did not lie, and that Abraham's seed are almost as numberless as the sands of the sea shore. God's people have been sorely tried in the generations past, but the power of God has always prevailed over the devil, and will in the end if we surrender our lives completely to the master. The devil took Job and put him through the most severe tests, but he remained true to his God. Abraham took Isaac upon the mountain and would have obeyed God by sacrificing his son, but the hand of the master stayed the knife when he saw that Abraham was worthy and would obey Him under all conditions and circumstances. So it is with us—God may test us, but He will always give us strength to overcome temptation if we place our lives in his care.

"David was an example of what God will do for those who completely surrender their lives to Him. No matter how deep in sin we may go, God will always forgive us and save us if we are truly repentant.

"There are three fundamentals I want you all to remember and never forget, namely:

"1.—God is love.

"2.—God is all wise.

"3.—God is all powerful.

"When we fully appreciate the meaning of these three great principles and obey them we will live in the true atmosphere of the Master.

"You will never get to heaven unless you pass through purgatory—and purgatory is right here on earth for most of us. Purgatory is unbelief, dissension, etc., and we have all of it here. Lucifer started dissensions in heaven, and he had so much influence that scores of angels followed him and were cast out of the golden city. The devil induced Adam and Eve to find fault and grumble and sin came upon them with a rush. So it is with each one of us if we allow ourselves to heed the wishes of the devil. The devil induced Adam and Eve to find fault, but he could not point out to them any wrong. God lets roses grow on thorns and thorns on roses. You can take your choice. It makes a great deal of difference as to how we look at a thing. Two buckets met each other in the well. One said I am discouraged; I bring up a load every time, but come back empty. The other bucket said: 'I always come down empty but I never fail to bring up a load of pure refreshing water.' And so it is in life—the bitter is mixed with the sweet, but the shining face of the Master beckons us on to the land where we shall never die if we prove faithful in this life.

"Count everything joy, dear friends, and the God of heaven will be with you. Leap for joy when they rob you and say all manner of liad things about you for they did more than this to your blessed Master."

Elder Warren will preach again Wednesday and Friday nights, but will only conduct Bible students in the afternoon at the church at 3 o'clock, to which he extends an invitation to all to be present.

LA MADRID IS TO GIVE CHARITY BALL

Elaborate plans for a charity ball to be held at the chamber of commerce hall on Friday, October 13, for the benefit of the California home for crippled children, are being made by Harry Bennett, president of the La Madrid club and Edward Stockbridge, chairman of the charities committee.

The ball is being held at the request of the board of directors of the home as a part of a $100,000 drive for funds.

According to Harry Bennett there will be prizes given for the best waltz and fox trot to be given away by two prominent movie stars. The names of stars are being witheld.

Mr. Roberts of Roberts & Echols headed the list with a check for $5 for the first ticket purchased.

Tickets are on sale at the Glendale Music company, Schuck Music company, Roberts & Echols Drug company, and the Glendale Candy shop.

BROTHERHOOD OF FEDERATION MEETING

Considerable interest is being manifested over the Federated Brotherhood banquet which takes place next Tuesday evening, October 17, at the Central Christian Church at 6:45.

The banquet will be well prepared and served by the Ladies' Aid of the church. An opportunity will be given to inspect this new, beautiful building. And, furthermore, all men will want to hear Judge Bledsoe's address. Tickets may be had at the Glendale Bookstore, 113 South Brand.

'ETERNAL FLAME' AT T. D. & L. TODAY

"The Eternal Flame," a magnificent picturization of Honore Balzac's "La Duchesse de Langeais," with Norma Talmadge in the most poignant starring vehicle she has yet graced with her beauty and charm, is the extraordinary First National attraction this week at the T. D. & L. Theatre, where it opens its engagement today.

The story revolves about the petty jealousies, scandals and romances of the court of Louis XVIII with the beautiful duchess as the outstanding figure.

Miss Talmadge as the duchess reaches the heights of her wonderfully successful career, as the heartless court coquette, she is elusive; as the woman whose true love is doubted and forsworn, she is a most magnetic, appealing figure.

THE REFERENDUM

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This column will be devoted to signed propaganda relating to the various measures on the state ballot in November and other matter of like nature. Responsibility for statements herein lies with the authors whose names are signed. The space is limited.)

Los Angeles, Oct. 10.—If the platform builders of the political parties are good judges of the trend of public sentiment, the attitude of the political parties of California as shown by their platforms would seem to indicate certain defeat for Proposition No. 27, on this year's ballot. Proposition 27 proposes to increase the required percentage of signatures on initiative petitions concerning taxation from 8 per cent, the present number, to 15 per cent; which its opponents declare would practically destroy the initiative except for powerful special interests.

The Republican, Democratic and Prohibition platforms, just adopted at Sacramento, all declare strongly for the initiative and referendum and oppose efforts to repeal, destroy or impair them. The Republican party "stands unequivocally for these principles of government and pledges its legislative nominees to maintain, safeguard and protect them." The Democrats warn the people of the present danger and call for response at the polls. The Prohibitionists "recommend electors to vote against No. 27 on the ballot November 7th."

The League of California Municipalities, which met at Palo Alto at the same time, adopted a resolution condemning No. 27 in emphatic terms, declaring that 15 per cent petitions would be prohibitive except to "special interests having large financial and other resources at their control."

LEGALIZE PIPE SMOKING.

London—London's oldest club—White's in fashionable St. James street is considering permitting its members to smoke pipes, a privilege denied them since the club's foundation in 1698. The club committee has favorably considered a petition, signed by 200 members, asking that pipe-smoking should be permitted in one room. A notice to that effect has been posted, and, unless a general meeting to consider the innovation is demanded, the pipe-smoking ban will be removed.

FIRE PREVENTION

October 9 was set aside as international Fire Prevention day. Presidential and royal proclamations give the occasion official dignity. The date was selected because it was October 9 that the great fire devastated Chicago. This was in 1871. It was then that Mrs. O'Leary's cow entered into history and into rest. The younger generation may not know that the conflagration was attributed to the kicking over of the lamp which was lighting Mrs. O'Leary in the process of milking.

It is customary to mark October 9 by impressive exercises designed to rouse caution. This is most fitting and proper, and yet aside from these special and spectacular features, the spirit that rules fire prevention day should be of full force and effect throughout the year. The facts in relation to destruction by fire are appalling. It is possible here to cite but a few of them. A large proportion of fires are due directly to carelessness. People are careless in relation to matches, to heating and lighting in the home, to cooking, to cleansing fabrics with inflammable solutions. They do not attend to having flues and stovepipes in good condition. Youngsters are allowed to play with matches. The same treacherous little articles are scattered where they may be stepped on, or carried away by mice, later to ignite mysteriously in a basement or attic. They are thrown away while half consumed. Useless junk is permitted to accumulate where it may engender spontaneous combustion. Ashes are dumped into wooden receptacles. Bonfires are left to go out, or to be fanned higher, and distributed among the growths of the yard. People smoke close to gasoline. These are a few explanations of fires.

In 1913, the latest figures available owing to the war, the fire loss in France was 49 cents per capita; in England 33 cents; in Germany 28 cents; in other European countries even less, while in Holland it was 11 cents. At the same time, in the United States, the loss was $2.10 per capita. This means the direct loss through destruction of material.

While Vienna, a city about the size of Chicago, lost $303,000 by fire, Chicago was losing $5,513,237. The fire loss in New York is four and one-half times as great as that in London. This exposes conditions and practices of which the people of this country should be ashamed, and which it is their imperative duty, as well as the prompting of good sense, to remedy.

Consider the total fire disasters in another way: If the buildings consumed by fire annually in the United States were to be placed on 65-foot lots, they would fill both sides of a street reaching from Chicago to New York. Something to think about. At each 1000 yards there would be a place at which somebody had been injured. Every three-quarters of a mile would be a victim burned to death. Something more to think about. Yearly 23,000 perish by fire in this country.

There were 1500 fires in the United States yesterday. There will be the same number today, and a fresh quota of similar size tomorrow, and so on and on until people are awakened to their danger, and take steps to prevent it.

This paper favors a Fire Prevention day. It also favors one to embrace twenty-four hours of every day in the year.

THE VULNERABLE JURY

The present jury system is not faultless. Nevertheless a better method of achieving a verdict based on law and facts has still to be devised. Many suggestions to this end have been made, but as each is presented it is picked to bits by jurists. If the outcome of court trials is to be left to the wisdom of twelve chosen persons, there surely could be improvements in the fashion of making the several choices. It would be futile to affirm that the average jury is of high intellectual class. The questions talesmen are required to answer militate against any such result. To be acceptable, each candidate must profess a profound ignorance. To make such profession in an important case is to confess unfitness. If the ignorance is real, it means a degree of stupidity incapable of recognizing a fact, analyzing a motive, or appreciating the intent of the statutes. If it is feigned, it is the expression of bad faith.

In trials for capital crimes, it is common for talesmen to state they have no prejudice against the extreme punishment, and then to decline to find a guilty prisoner guilty, because to do so would be to send him or her to the gallows. In other words, many jurymen regard their oaths so lightly that often they go into the box with their minds made up, and the opinion they have formed, no weight of evidence can change. The conditions prevailing in the sessions of the second Obenchain jury have all the apparent color of scandal. They have been under investigation for weeks. It is to be hoped that the whole truth has been discovered, that exposure will be complete, rebuke severe, and the consequent lesson in jury morals, of value to the cause of justice.

DISCOVERING THE WORLD

The American publisher who has arranged for the printing of the real news of his country in a series of leading European papers is doing the world a distinct service. In a most practical way he is battling the policy of isolation. There is prejudice in Europe against America. Doubtless much of it arises from lack of knowledge. There has been no source from which knowledge could be derived save as intelligent Americans abroad may have been viewed as really representative. Even to these, circumstance denied common contact with the continental public. The ordinary correspondents, purporting to keep Europe informed about the United States, selected always the bizarre and sensational. A scandal among the rich was regarded as a timely theme. Racial contentions, perhaps of small consequence, and having no national significance, were exaggerated. An instance of mob violence in a remote region was given the importance of a civil war. The material progress and political hopes of the United States, the actual sentiments and purposes of its citizens; the high code of ethics directing the conduct of the great majority, all were sedulously ignored. Europeans were given no chance to learn of the western continent. It remained terra incognita, its outlines concealed by a cloud of words disguising the essential truth about it. Doubtless this policy has worked both ways. The European correspondent tells of the malorous exploits of a Peggy Joyce, or the pranks of an American capitalist who sneaks abroad to win a divorce he could not get at home. He details the fashionable activities of the demi-monde at the races, or the adventurous roysterers wasting their money at notorious gambling resorts. But, with honorable exceptions, he leaves the heart and soul of Europe closed to the enquiring senses.

A SIGNIFICANT HONOR

Mrs. W. H. Felton of Georgia is the first woman to become United States senator. Her appointment to fill the vacancy created by the death of Thomas E. Watson, while it means no assumption by her of official duty, is a distinct compliment. Mrs. Felton is 87 years of age, still active in body and mind. For many years she has been recognized as a leader among the women of the south. She has been an active factor in promotion of suffrage and is a believer in equality of the sexes. As an advocate of the temperance cause, and of every move for civic betterment, she has won distinction. The compliment is to her and to all women. It is particularly notable that this episode should have marked the south, where the amendment granting the franchise and making full citizens of women, had been strongly opposed. The men of the south were the last to come into line, and then they did it reluctantly, yielding to pressure from outside. The women themselves seemed to have the idea that in some way, by accepting the ballot, they would be stepping down from their high estate. Mrs. Felton was far from accepting such view. The men have been won over to her way of thinking, while doubtless the new citizens are glad of the power they now exercise, and the added dignity that has come to them. Otherwise the appointment of Mrs. Felton hardly could have been met by such a chorus of approval as marked the announcement.

CUTTING DOWN THE ARMY

Congress seems to have assumed that the world is dedicated to peace, and that there is no use for a standing army. Therefore it has cut the establishment to less than skeleton formation, carving not only to the bone, but tapping the marrow. There are implied threats that it will go farther, although how it could do so, and keep up a pretense of maintaining an army at all, is difficult to see. At the same time somebody, apparently having official authority, announces that should war come, the defenses would be ready and adequate. As a matter of fact, should war come, it would find the country in the same predicament it was when called into the world conflict. This is the same as saying that a system of defense and offense would have to be built up from the very beginning. There would necessarily be a repetition of the haste, extravagance and inadequacy that marked preliminaries, and created scandal innumerable.

The people of the United States earnestly desire peace. They have made this known in various ways. They made it known when they applauded the four-power pact that assured the vast Pacific area against war. They are willing to cut down armament to the extent that the process may be safe. They would be glad to lay down their weapons in unison with all other powers capable of making war. They have not yet such confidence that they would calmly see their land stripped of the means of protection, while the spirit of rapacity, vengeance and hatred has been loosed anew over so much of the world.

QUERIES

(Find the error in this article)

Possessive With Gerund

Miss D. G. Bonnell, New York City: "Which of the following sentences is correct: 'The committee has not held since September 1st, owing to the Secretary's and other members being out of town'; or, '. . . owing to the Secretary and other members being out of town'? Please give the reason for your decision." Answer: The first sentence is correct as far as the possessive case is concerned. The objects of the preposition to are not "Secretary" and "members." "Being" is the object of "to", and both "Secretary's" and "members'" modify "being."

When the Verb Follows "There"

"A Reader", Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada: "Will you please advise me through your column which of the following sentences is correct: 'There certainly has been a lot of changes'; or, 'There certainly have been a lot of changes'?" Answer: The New Standard Dictionary defines "lot", in part, as follows: "(Colloq.) A great quantity or amount . . . a vague form of expression to be avoided as tending to indistinctness of thought and debasement of language". Correct: There certainly have been many changes. The verb should be plural to agree with its subject changes.

A Word Understood

K. F., New York City: "Please advise me. "A" asks "B" how many one-cent stamps there are in a dozen. "B" claims that this question is incorrect inasmuch as the 'dozen' does not necessarily refer to the one-cent stamps, but may possibly mean a dozen or any other things." Answer: One-cent stamps is understood.

"Before", Conjunction and Proposition

H. L. J., New York City: "Please tell me whether the following conversation is correct: 'Did Mrs. Adams ever go to that school?'

'Yes. She went there before I did.'

'You must be wrong; I think she never went there.'

'I tell you she did; she went there before me.'"

Answer: It is correct. The first "before" is a conjunction; the second, a preposition, requiring the objective case after it.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

"Two dead, two fatally injured, ten badly hurt."

Mortality statistics.

The press carries them the particular morning this Listening Post is written.

A battle perhaps.

Where?

* * *

None of us knew there was any war.

In this country at least.

Surely not in Los Angeles county.

And yet these figures are figures fit for a skirmish at least.

A rather bloody skirmish at that.

* * *

"Two killed, two fatally injured, ten badly hurt."

Somebody threw a bomb into a crowd perhaps?

No, not that.

A grandstand collapsed?

No.

What then?

* * *

It must have been some lamentable and distressing tragedy that cost two, possibly four, lives and maimed half a score.

Something not to be repeated.

And yet it is being repeated every day or half a week or week.

* * *

It is repeated so often that it is commonplace.

Nobody pays much attention.

We have become hardened to the casualties of the road.

On which there is constant warfare.

The constant warfare between recklessness and criminal careless and indifference and human life.

* * *

It is part of the day's news.

It makes a headline that is interesting at least.

And we dismiss it, unless one of the deaths or maimings has come home to us or to our neighbors.

So we read it and say "My! My!" and the paper is cast aside.

With its record.

"Two killed, two fatally injured, ten badly hurt."

* * *

Somebody must have been reckless and careless.

It takes pretty fast driving to produce that record.

Pretty fast and pretty reckless.

Yet there is the record of the dead and wounded.

With our crowded streets and many people there are of course no "missing."

* * *

This record is one to be thought about.

Pondered over.

One to sink in.

So that something may be done about it.

For there is no telling when you may be one of the killed.

Or the fatally injured.

Or the badly hurt.

Then it will be too late for you to do any constructive thinking.

* * *

It may be your best friend.

Some good and kindly neighbor.

And then the record of killings and maimings will come home forcefully to you.

"Two killed, two fatally injured, ten badly hurt."

* * *

The battle of the highways.

Smeared with blood and spattered with gore.

Our daily record of death and injury a shame and disgrace.

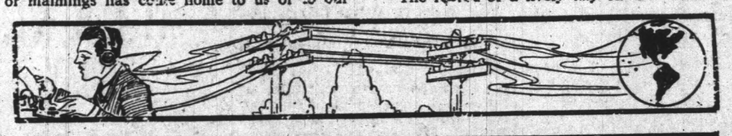
And no decrease.

What are we going to do about it?

* * *

"Two dead, two fatally injured, ten badly hurt!"

The record of a lively day on the road.



SONGS OF THE POST'S POETS

EVENING ON CALAIS BEACH—William Wordsworth, 1770-1850

It is a beauteous evening, calm and free,
The holy time is quiet as a Nun
Breathless with adoration; the broad sun
Is sinking down in its tranquility;
The gentleness of heaven is on the sea;
Listen! the mighty Being is awake,
And doth with his eternal motion make
A sound like thunder—everlastingly.
Dear child! dear Girl! that walkest with me here,
If thou appear untouch'd by solemn thought,
Thou liest in Abraham's bosom all year;
Thy nature is not therefore less divine;
And worshipp'st at the Temple's inner shrine,
God being with thee when we know it not.

PLANTS FIGHT FOR LIFE BEGINS BEFORE BIRTH

That the fight for life with the survival of the most fit, which Darwin held began with the birth of an animal or the germination of a seed in the ground, starts much earlier in vascular plants with a struggle between minute or embryonic individuals entirely within the parent growth is clearly proved by experiments, according to Dr. John T. Buchholz, professor of botany, University of Arkansas, in Fayetteville, Ark.

The Darwinian theory of natural selection holds that when seeds germinate or when vegative organs such as roots give rise to new individuals or when animals are born they enter the ring of life for a battle royal against physical environment, against other species, and against their own fellows. That a selection may occur during the earliest development stages of the individual, during the process of seed development, has been neglected in the literature of organic evolution, claims Dr. Buchholz, although many of the important facts have been known to science for nearly a century.

What he calls "developmental selection" represents a competition between the individual embryos, pollen tubes, egg, etc., which expresses itself in the reproductive cycle of practically all vascular plants and is a factor to be reckoned with among animals as well.

In such conifers as the spruce, for example, there are several embryos that engage in an intense life and death competition during their development. Only one embryo reaches its full term of growth to become the seed. This process is more truly selection than the so-called natural selection as conditions inside the plants are more uniform than those found in the complex external environment in which chance plays so large a part.

Developmental selection should not be confused with older theories. It is easily demonstrable and occurs between definite individuals which may be of the one cell or the many cell kind.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THEATER TEACHES PREACHERS

[The Christian Century]

Ingersoll used to say that on the stage they pretend to be natural, and in the pulpit it is natural to pretend. It was a wicked saying when printed without the winning smile; but what would he have said had he heard of a theater school organized to teach preachers, not how to act, but how to use their voices to the best advantage? Such an enterprise is now afoot in New York City, conducted by Evelyn Hall, an actress, under theater school auspices—which proves that the melancholy Preacher of Jerusalem was wrong when he said there is nothing new under the sun. Nor is it a thing to be laughed at. Many a good sermon is spoiled because the preacher does not know how to deliver it. Surely, if the preacher has the best of good news to tell, he ought to use every aid of art to tell it. Joseph Parker learned much from his friend, Sir Henry Irving, and Beecher used to study Edwin Booth—asking him to repeat the Lord's prayer, that he might hear it in a manner worthy of its depth and beauty. As between an untaught voice and an artificial elocution there is little to choose but without going to either extreme there is an art of using the voice which brings out its natural quality and power, and it should be employed in the service of the gospel. The ministers who have joined the class at the theater school are to be commended, if thereby they learn to tell the old story in tones of haunting loveliness.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Speaking of war—since merely speaking of it can do no harm—speaking of war, then, if the United States ever becomes involved in another, many sudden happenings will follow. The instrumentalities that have been perfected would make it destructive beyond all precedent. For example, there is a 16-inch coast defense gun. It fires a projectile weighing a ton. Alighting twenty-six miles away, after having described an arc carrying it ten miles aloft, it is capable of piercing sixteen inches of steel, after which it explodes very ungently. There is a fuse shell that the touch of an airplane wing will cause to detonate, although the firing of it is safe. As an additional disturber of the enemy, is to be counted a tank which floats, or travels by land at twelve miles an hour. Other tanks will be controlled by radio. The facts are cited as a possible influence in the preservation of peace. However, if the airplane as an agency of war has reached the potency claimed for it, no enemy will be able to get near enough to serve as a target for the gun mentioned above.

HENRY JAMES

But this country is not going to have war, since its mood is not to go abroad to seek it, and nobody is likely to brave the risk of bringing war to these shores. It is not that the world is sweet and amiable so much as that it has sense enough to be cautious.

The supervisors of Los Angeles county propose to save the beaches for the public. To this end, private interests will be inhibited from fencing the shore, and pretending to own a part of the ocean. The beaches form an important feature of a great playground, and the privileges of playing there belongs equally to all.

An airplane firm has been sued by the government for about two and a half million dollars, with interest from June 11, 1918. There is a decided air of business about this, and when the government goes into business, it is a very serious concern. There hsa been much averment that large sums have been paid in settlement of fraudulent claims of contractors. The public is much interested in knowing the truth about it.

It was a very peculiar request from a condemned prisoner that the execution of the law upon him be carried out to the accompaniment of a jazz band. Naturally it shocked the warden, and he felt inclined not to oblige, despite the custom of favoring such a prisoner at the last, in any reasonable way. However, the person who has no human blood on his hands, and does not apprehend the noose, is not in position to say what should be the normal emotoins of the one who has had the first tragic experience, and for whom another tragedy awaits.

A novel test to determine the presence of insanity occurred in a Los Angeles court recently. The suspected lunatic proclaimed himself a prophet, but this was not deemed conclusive evidence, and so he was asked to prophesy as to the next President. "William Randolph Hearst" he responded. Then they sent him away to the place for such unfortunates made and provided.

Prohibition officers emptied seventy-five gallons of so-called whisky into the street in such a manner that it seeped into a ditch where men were adjusting gas pipes, to the well-known odor of the content of such pipes. The stink of the fiery liquid made the men sick. If moonshiners see any good advertising in the incident they are welcome to it.

* * *

Another of the episodes that arise from the tendency of a man to woo too numerously has come to light. The body of a male has been found floating in an Arizona ditch. The evidence is that he had been choked to death and then tossed into the water. Among his effects was a list of the women whose affections he seems to have annexed or planned to win. Most of them are married, and doubtless court no publicity. Sometimes the professional masher fails to realize that his conduct is displeasing to husbands, until one of the husbands is engaged in killing him.

* * *

People do not realize the extent of water power in this country. For example, since the passing of the federal water act in 1920, applications for installation permits involve more than twenty million horse power. This is a total greater than the entire water power of Norway, Sweden, Finland and the Arctic and Baltic drainage of Russia. It is almost double the combined resources of France and Italy, and is more than twice the water power already operating in the United States. This means more for future industrial development and increase of wealth than may be estimated.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Queer, isn't it, how differently folks look at the same thing?

I've an old and lovable pal named Reggie. He was brought up by a heavy-chested, deep-voiced, wire-bearded granddad, who in turn had been brought up by a granddad who was bigger than he was. He taught Reggie his manners.

"Always say 'sir,'" he used to thunder at Reggie. "Always be courteous. Never permit yourself to grow slack or familiar in your manner. Only your intimates can be addressed by their first names."

And Reggie always has. He has "sir-red" every one he ever met, except, of course, youngsters, livery stable hands, and waiters. He "sirs" involuntarily and instinctively, just as he rises when a woman comes into or leaves the room and just as he takes off his hat when he enters a friend's door. His method has made a tremendous hit with the ladies. They stand around with shining eyes and watch Reggie go through his tricks.

"He has the manners of a grand duke," an old lady from Russia once said. That was the only good thing, incidentally, I ever heard about a grand duke.

But I'm not so sure that Reggie's grandpa did him a good turn when he taught him to sir. Manners are a thing quite distinct from courtesy. The latter is instinctive and has its origin in kindness and gentility. The most mannerly man I ever saw was a Prussian colonel, and yet I saw him shove a lame old woman into the ditch. Too much "sir-ring" is not far from servility. The caste system has not planted itself very firmly here in America—though it seems sometimes to be on the way—and "sir" is a title which, it seems to me, belongs only to an elderly man, a leader in science, or the President of the United States. Senators, ministers, editors, and the like, answer very thankfully to "hy."

Maybe the American point of view is wrong, and maybe I haven't got it, anyhow. But it sometimes seems as though the manners of a grand duke and a head waiter are not much different. Anyhow, it's what is under the manners that counts.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

Let's all Boost and Make Glendale a City of 50,000 in 1925. At the enormous rate we are growing this can be easily accomplished if we all pull together and boost all sections of the city. We need more schools, better public buildings and other things that go for the making of a good city. The sewer problem seems to be near solution, and there is nothing now to prevent full steam ahead for making Glendale a CITY IN THE TRUE SENSE OF THE WQRD.

BABSON, THE GREAT AUTHORITY ON CITY DEVELOPMENT, SAYS:

"A revolution is to take place in city development during the next decade. The automobile is to have as great an effect on living conditions as the sewing machine had on weaving. As the mill has taken the place of the home spinning wheel, so the suburb is to take the place of the city for residential purposes. Tremendous movements from the city to the suburbs may be expected during the next few years. Wise cities will begin to immediately prepare for this great suburban development, which, in many cases, will mean the extension of city limits.

"Such a revolution in living must result in the extension of water plants, expansion of sewerage systems, and a tremendous era of new road building, home building and other improvements. This will cause a great demand for carpenters, masons, plasterers, and common labor of all kinds. The building boom has not yet reached its height. Every feature connected with building, from the supplying of raw materials to the furnishings of the home should prosper for the next year or two. This is the real reason why certaian forms of labor is scarce today and why building materials and commodities are strengthening in price. It is the real reason why the money operators of the Central States and the mill owners of the Eastern States have been obliged to take back the workers at the old wages. It is this emigration from the city to the suburbs which has changed the labor market. Of course, labor leaders claim credit for checking wage cuts, but it clearly is not due to them. Henry Ford's flivvers are causing this demand for homes in the suburbs, and the consequent demand for mechanics, carpenters and common labor.

"Wise are the cities and towns that take advantage of these new conditions. Those city fathers who do not, will miss a great opportunity. Moreover, the time is now especially propitious for municipalities to capitalize this great movement. Money rates are low. There is a good demand for municipal bonds. The Federal Income Tax and state and city taxes are especially favorable to municipal borrowing. How long cities will have this advantage I do not know, but the situation certainly should be seized while it lasts. Nothing helps a city so much as good paving, a splendid water supply, proper sewerage, and, of course, good schools.

"This especially applies to the Southern cities which have not in the past had the available funds that some of the Northern cities have had. Great opportunities present themselves to those cities that are to benefit from river improvements, flood protection, and other natural problems. New Orleans is an illustration of a city which should take advantage of this present opportunity of low money rates in paving its streets and developing its suburbs.

"During the next ten years we will witness a great municipal race —yes, a great municipal Marathon race. The cities which are now behind will have an opportunity of getting in the front ranks; while some of the cities now in the front ranks will drop back into the lower places. The result of the race will depend upon the vision of those who direct the affairs of these cities.

"These changing conditions are already evidenced by the Business Barometer Figure of the Babsonchart which has reached to 7% below normal. I expect this sub-normal condition to soon disappear. Wise are the cities which plan their improvements and make their contracts while business is still below normal."

COLLEGE MEN ARE SCARCE

Do you know that you meet on the street 116 jersons before you find one who is a college graduate?

Of course all you meet are not old enough to be college graduates.

Excluding all of these you will still meet 67 adults before encountering a single college graduate.

Each citizen is entitled to know how his own state is functioning in producing college graduates.

Are the higher educational institutions of California up to standard in furnishing a high quality of education to a large number of young men and women?

Do they succeed in enrolling and graduating as high a proportion of college students as do similar institutions in New York or Massachusetts?

These are pertinent questions to be asked of the universities and colleges of California. In short how do the higher educational institutions of California rank?

Colleges will never succeed in performing their proper function until the state has produced a large proportion of high school graduates. Has California been delinquent in this respect? These are two of the fifty questions that Mr. Bonner will attempt to answer in his address at the Grammar School Auditorium in Burbank, on Wednesday, October 11 at 8 p.m.

For the past five years he has been the specialist in Educational Statistics in the United States Bureau of Education and has published for distribution an aggregate of more than 20,000,000 pages of statistical matter relating to education. For the past year he has given his spare time to a study of state educational efficiency and has ranked the states on fifty important educational points. He has found an index of educational efficiency for each state on its elementary schools, high schools, and colleges and is now prepared to give to the public the results of his study. If you are interested in knowing how California ranks when its efficiency is compared with that of other states, you cannot afford to miss hearing his address. Lantern slides will be used to illustrate his conclusions. The rank of the states has also been recomputed on the basis used by Colonel Leonard P. Ayres in 1918 and the Ayers' index is graphically compared with the one reached by Mr. Bonner Every parent of school children is entitled to know how California ranks.

COAL ASHES ON SOIL

"Will coal ashes injure the soil for vegetable growing?" asks a Secator suburbanite. Prof. F. J. Sievers of the soils department of the state college of Washington replies that coal ashes have no fertilizing value.

"Their only effect on the soil is a physical one," he says. "They may be beneficial in making very compact, heavy, clayey soil more friable. Since a loose, mellow soil is very essential for the growing of vegetables it may be advisable to apply coal ashes to the land at about the rate of two or three tons to the acre on soils that are inclined to be lumpy. When applied to sandy or sandy-loam soils, coal ashes have only an injurious effect, and the practice is not recommended."

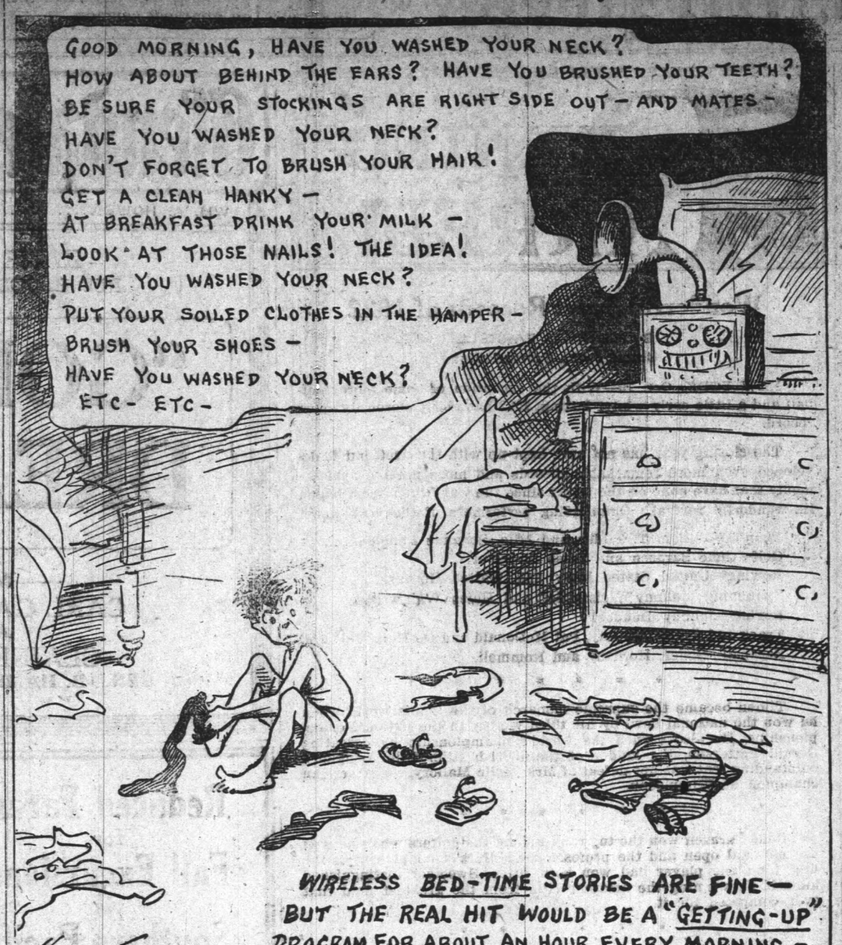
What Every Mother Knows. —By Herbert Johnson.



GOOD MORNING, HAVE YOU WASHED YOUR NECK?
HOW ABOUT BEHIND THE EARS? HAVE YOU BRUSHED YOUR TEETH?
BE SURE YOUR STOCKINGS ARE RIGHT SIDE OUT — AND MATES —
HAVE YOU WASHED YOUR NECK?
DON'T FORGET TO BRUSH YOUR HAIR!
GET A CLEAN HANKY —
AT BREAKFAST DRINK YOUR MILK —
LOOK AT THOSE NAILS! THE IDEA!
HAVE YOU WASHED YOUR NECK?
PUT YOUR SOILED CLOTHES IN THE HAMPER —
BRUSH YOUR SHOES —
HAVE YOU WASHED YOUR NECK?
ETC - ETC -
WIRELESS BED-TIME STORIES ARE FINE —

Don't Be Fooled

"FOOL me once," says the proverb, "and it's shame on you. Fool me twice and it's shame on me."

Don't be fooled when it comes to spending your money. Patronize the merchants who have a reputation for fair dealing and honesty. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his patrons.

The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they will satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

So advertising protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products and the best places to buy them.

Thrifty men and women read the advertisements. To them it is a plain everyday business proposition—a duty they owe to themselves and to their pocketbooks.

Don't be fooled.

Don't spend your money blindly

IN THE AIR

What's in the air today?
New songs for singing,
Gladness to light the way,
Bright hopes for bringing;
Fragrance from many a rose,
Deeds for the doing,
Never a breeze but blows
Blossoms for strewing.

What's in the air today?
Dreams for the dreaming;
Song of the birds in May,
Glad sunlight streaming,
Hush of the shaded nooks,
Deep music sounding,
Splash of the rills and brooks,
Love all abounding.

What's in the air today?
Friendship grown tender,
Spirits of youth at play,
All of life's splendor;
Memory's golden voice
From somewhere winging,
Bidding my soul rejoice,
While she is singing.

What's in the air today?
New songs for singing,
Scent of the flowers in May
As they come springing.
Word of the Living God,
Hear ye Him speak it!
This in the air today—
Let us go seek it.

YOUNG DELINQUENTS

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers)

With increasing knowledge of the part played by feeble-mindedness and so-called constitutional inferiority as causes of vicious and criminal behavior in early life, many are wrongly inclined to assume that whenever a child grossly and persistently misbehaves there must be some incurable defect in that child's psychic make-up.

Even parents, over-impressed by the relationship which undoubtedly does exist between psychic blemish and delinquency, often despair too soon. "There is nothing that can be done," they mournfully tell themselves, with reference to a seemingly uncontrollable child. "I can only guard and watch my defective little one all his life."

But the fact is that youthful delinquency more often than not is a sign of fault in the child's training or surroundings rather than of defect in the child himself. Again and again this is found to be the case when the problem raised by the delinquency is attacked by one familiar with child psychology and psychopathology.

Sometimes what is needed most of all is a complete change in the environment. Sometimes all that is needed is a better understanding by the parents themselves of environmental conditions which, through causing the child keen distress of mind, incite to misbehavior as a symptom of that distress.

"Mental conflict," to use the term employed by experts in the study of young delinquents, is surprsiingly often the real cause of delinquency. Remove the source of conflict, or train the child to react less violently to the situation which troubles him and the delinquency will cease.

Typically illustrative is a case reported by Dr. Annette M. McIntire, the case of a boy referred to the Boston Psychopathic hospital for observation because of an ungovernable temper, destructive tendencies, habitual falsifying and repeated threats to do away with himself. The only child of an insane mother, his conduct assuredly suggested that he was the hopeless victim of an inherited taint.

But a more hopeful view was taken after the boy had been submitted to a mental testing.

Intellectually he graded a year ahead of his age, had good power of attention and more than ordinary interest in the current events of everyday life. To the kind treatment he received in the hospital ward he reacted by quiet and orderly behavior, giving not the least trouble to those in charge of him.

His delinquency was interpreted as a conflict reaction to feelings of inferiority, due partly to appreciation of his mother's plight and partly to the attitude of others toward him. His own statements bore out this interpretation, as he frankly acknowledged his misconduct and attributed it to the fact that other boys in the school he had attended were always "picking" on him.

A foster home was found, he was sent to another school, and soon there was no longer occasion to regard him as a delinquent. A year later he was reported to be "helpful and willing at home, quiet spoken, refined looking and reliable." And another year later he was described as "a good average boy, doing well in school."

Let anything in the environment weigh heavily on the mind of a sensitive child, delinquency may be the result. It is as important to appreciate this as it is to appreciate the inborn factors in delinquency.

For only through such appreciation, leading to close scrutiny of every individual case, can measures be taken saving to usefulness and happiness children who all their lives might otherwise be burdens on their parents and on society. This is one of the best-established facts of modern criminology.

FANNING WITH FARRELL

Wonderful Sport Records of 1922

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—With the exception of some more football and a little early winter boxing, 1922 has about closed its sport record.

The closing year has not only kept up with the past, but it developed even more remarkable records and more notable achievements that have gone on the books since the war, when sport began its wonderful revival. Outstanding performers of the year were:

Tennis—William T. Tilden and Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen.
Golf—Gene Sarazen and Jesse Sweetser.
Rowing—United States Navy and Walter Hoover.
Swimming—Johnny Weismuller and Helen Wainwright.
Boxing—Johnny Dundee.
Track and field—Joie Ray, Pat McDonald and De Hart Hubbard.
Baseball—Sisler, Hornsby and Rommell.

* * * * * * *

Tilden became the supreme monarch of the tennis world when he won the national bowl by his third victory in the national championships. He also earned the world's championship by defeating Gerald Patterson, the holder of the British title. Mlle. Lenglen's outstanding feat was her defeat of Mrs. Molla Mallory, the American champion at Wimbledon.

* * * * * * *

Gene Sarazen won the top rank among the golfers when he won the national open and the professional golfers' championships, the first time one player had won both titles. Sweetser distinguished himself by winning the amateur title from the greatest field that ever competed for it.

* * * * * * *

In winning every start and copping the intercollegiate championship in record time, the Naval academy eight easily stamped itself as the best crew on the water and Walter Hoover, the Duluth oarsman, in winning the American title and the Diamond Sculls in England won the individual honors.

Johnny Weismuller and Helen Waniwright made so many records that no one approached them on the year's work in the water.

* * * * * * *

Johnny Dundee won two ring titles, the junior lightweight and the featherweight championship of the New York boxing commission. He fought more than any other boxer, went out of his class more and earned more distinction than any other fighter.

* * * * * * *
